

What is Covenant Marriage?

It is sharing a secret with someone who is yours. It is a quiet but knowing look across the room. It is daring to speak the unspeakable for the sake of your relationship. It is risking your most personal self because there is a net beneath. It is accepting and forgiving. It is laughter in the night. It is coming home after an impossible day to meet someone who has also had an impossible day, and collapsing together on the sofa. It is the joy of belonging unconditionally.
